BOY POURS OIL ON FIRE

Youth Visiting in York County Is Severely Burned

EXPLOSION FOLLOWED AS USUAL

Young Linwood Miller, Left in the House of His Hosts Alone, Comes Near Being Destroyed Through His Own Carelessness.

Master Linwood Miller, of Keyser, W. Va., who is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Ironmonger, in York county narrowly escaped being burned to death at noon Sunday.

Mrs. Ironmonger and the members of her family attended church leaving the boy at home. He was to keep up the fire during the absence of the family. The boy attempted to pour kerosene oil on the fire and an explosion followed. He was burned about the face, head and shoulders before the blaze could be extinguished.

Dr. Powell was summoned and made the boy as comfortable as possible. His condition is said to be critical although Dr. Powell believes that he will recover.

IRVIN LEWELLING TO TEACH IN FOX HILL GRADED SCHOOLS

Newport News Man Elected to the Principalship—Miss Bullivant for West End Academy.

Mr. Irvin Lewelling, of Newport News, has been elected principal of the Fox Hill Graded Schools by the Chesapeake School board. Mr. Lewelling, after graduating from the Newport News School, entered Washington and Lee University, where he took his B. L. degree. He was highly recommended to the board.

Miss Blanche Bullivant, who for four years has taught in a business college in Falls River, Mass., has been chosen a teacher in the West End academy and will have charge of the departmental work. Miss Bullivant was a teacher in the High School before going to Massachusetts. The teachers of the Phoebus Graded Schools and West End Academy met with the teachers of the Synanon academy Saturday morning and heard an interesting address made by Prof. Willis A. Jenkins, the district superintendent.

Back From the North.
Mrs. I. M. Stacey who with her daughter, Mrs. M. V. Brinkley, has been touring the northern millinery markets, returned home Sunday morning.

Verdict for Defendant.
After hearing the testimony in the cause Judge Blackstone has given a decision in favor of Lively in the case of the Hampton Door and Sash Company against John L. Lively.

HOW WEASELS HUNT.

The Graceful Pose of the Animals When on the Trail.

The little grace of the weasel may be observed whenever it is on the trail. At an even speed, with nose to the ground, its reddish brown back seems literally to glide along through the rank herbage by the bank.

It may be the scent of a rat, and the trail may take it in and out of the bank a good many times before it comes up with its victim. It may even have to swim a stream before its persistence is rewarded. It is wonderful how small a hole that long, arched body can glide into and emerge from without the slightest difficulty.

When it has caught and killed its prey its movements are equally graceful as it carries the spoil home to its hole. Crossing a Kentish field I saw a weasel coming along under the hedge-row red toothed from the chase. There was the same sinuous motion of the back, but the little beast's head was held as high as possible and from its mouth hung the limp carcass of a young rat, freshly killed. The weasel held it by the neck and so high, for all the shortness of its legs, that only the end of the rat's tail dragged through the grass.

A family of weasels will often hunt in company, and this is naturally a most interesting sight to witness. The ability of the weasel to enter exceedingly small holes is owing entirely to the structure of its body—its flat head, long neck and short limbs and tail. In a cornfield it can pursue mice with ease along their burrows.—London Mail.

The Speed of Light.

Just think of it! Eleven times around this globe of ours in the space of sixty seconds! Can you imagine anything that moves with such remarkable speed? Sound travels only twelve and a half miles per minute and a rifle ball if its speed were not diminished by resistance sixteen and a half miles. Light passes through a distance equal to seven and a half revolutions of the earth in one minute, but electricity travels so astonishingly fast that it is able to complete the circuit of the earth eleven and a half times in sixty seconds.

Oratory in the Commons.

One of the London weeklies laments the decay of oratory in the house of commons. An observer has classified the styles of parliamentary speaking thus: "Haw hawk" style, the "hum and haw" style and the "hew" style. The first, he says, is used by the haughty gentlemen who tell in triumph on the treasury bench, the second distinguishes the utterances of the keen and watchful gentlemen on the front opposition bench, while the third sort fairly describes this effort of the private member.

The Bird of Death.

In New Guinea there is said to be a venomous bird called the bird of death. It is about the size of a pigeon, with a tail of extraordinary length ending in a tip of brilliant scarlet. It has a sharp, hooked beak and frequents marshes and stagnant pools. The venom with which it inoculates is distilled in a set of organs which lie in the upper mandible, just below the openings of the nostrils. Under them, in the roof of the mouth, is a small fleshy knob. When the bird sets its beak in the flesh of a victim this knob receives a pressure which liberates the venom and inoculates the wound.

The East and the West.

The numerous kinds of west of which the effete east solemnly discourses are enough to bewilder a Philadelphia lawyer. It will assure you that besides "the middle west," a phrase that it employs continually and with evident pleasure, there are an eastern west, a western west, a northern west and a southern west! Yet there is only one east, and hardly enough of that to swear by.—Californian.

All Right.

Tom—Here! You've started your note to Harbroughs "Dr. Sir." Don't you know that sort of abbreviation is very slovenly? Dick—No, sir, "Dr." is all right in this case. He owes me money.

A Wonderful Woman.

"What sort of a woman is your friend madame la countess?" "She is a woman of sixty, who looks fifty, thinks she's forty, dresses like thirty, and acts like twenty."
